

Mobility and Terrain

We have found that travellers of all ages enjoy our tours. However, to enjoy the full experience it does require a reasonable level of fitness and mobility.

The terrain is steep and uneven in places, and there can be moments when the group is required to move quite swiftly (for instance, moving away from approaching wildlife or in inclement weather).

Images of our paths are included below. These will give you an indication of how comfortable you may feel on tour.

We also welcome less-mobile travellers on tour, and have done so many times in the past! In these cases, our guides park the tour vehicle in a location where there is visibility across the conservation area and beach, and less mobile guests stay in the van with a set of high-powered binoculars. It's not as extensive nor intimate as our full tour, but can be very enjoyable.
